Summer Research Fellows are placed in laboratories for ten weeks at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center with the investigator serving as a mentor, role model and advisor.

Summer Research Fellows housing is arranged locally and is heavily funded by the program.

Summer Research Fellows are required to attend all seminars, lectures, group discussions, luncheon lectures, socializers and field trips and live in the dormitories.

You are also expected to attend the full ten week program. If the start date of the program conflicts with your final exams, arrangements can be made to have the exam administered here at UMMS utilizing the in house examination service.

Summer Research Fellows are required to create and present a professionally prepared scientific poster.

Co-Program Directors:

Deborah Harmon Hines, Ph.D.
Vice Provost of School Services and
Professor of Cell Biology

Janet Stein, Ph.D.
Professor of Cell Biology

GOALS

- Increase the number of applicants to the Graduate School of Biomedical Science at the University of Massachusetts Medical School.
- Attract under-represented, disadvantaged and disabled students into biomedical and behavioral research careers in the area of heart, lung and blood disorders.

The University of Massachusetts Medical School Summer Undergraduate Research Opportunity is a non-credit, ten-week, structured research experience.

The program consists of "hands-on" laboratory research experience with an investigator serving as a mentor, role model and advisor.

The program is designed to provide participants in-depth exposure to the actual scientific research in the hopes that the excitement, challenge and creativity of the enterprise will convince them to consider research in the sciences as a viable career choice.
