Project Assistants at
The Transitions RTC
Participatory Action Research (PAR)

PAR consists of direct involvement of young adult project assistants with serious mental health conditions (SMHC) in:

- Conducting research and knowledge translation activities
- Informing other youth and young adults, service providers, policy makers, consumers, and family members
- Impacting and improving services that best guide young adults with SMHC to reach their goals in employment and education
Learning to Do Research

Interview Training
- Project Assistants underwent an intensive interviewer training with Jon Delman, Director of PAR at the Transitions RTC. They were equipped with the skills to recruit and interview research participants.

Young Adult Employment Study (YAES)
- Project Assistants worked with a research team on a qualitative RTC study looking at the experiences of young adults with employment supports in Massachusetts. They aided in the creation of the semi-structured interview script, as well as conducting one-on-one interviews with young adults, transcription, and data entry.
PAR - Young Adult College Students and Accommodations

What are the perspectives/experiences of young adult college students with SMHC on seeking and using reasonable accommodations in a college setting?

We decided on this topic because of our own experiences with campus MH services.

4 Phases:
- Phase 1 – Secondary Analysis of Mark Salzer’s study (Community Inclusion RRTC – Temple U.) on experiences of young adults with mental health conditions in college – explore gaps
- Phase 2 – Qualitative interviews with college students with SMHC; shape web survey
- Phase 3 - Create and design a web survey for colleges and organizations
- Phase 4 - Collect and analyze data, disseminate findings

CHECK OUT OUR NEW TIP SHEET ABOUT DISCLOSING YOUR MENTAL HEALTH CONDITION AT THE WORKPLACE!

Many young adults ask themselves why, when, and how they should talk about their mental health conditions at work. Putting your mental health status out there when you know about many cases of discrimination can be scary. Are you wondering about this issue? If you are, then this is the perfect tip sheet for you!

MUSIC

Check out these songs! Some of them are about the musical experience while other songs simply inspire us in our path to recovery. They remind us that we are not alone in our daily struggles!

Please note that inclusion of these artists on this page does not indicate that they have a mental health condition.

JILLIAN JENSEN

Jillian Jensen is a young adult who has been bullied and has strength to stand against it, supporting those who have been bullied, in her audition to the show “X Factor.” The song is also very inspirational! Enjoy!

MEG HUTCHINSON

Lyric-based, contemporary acoustic songwriter from Massachusetts. She also suffers from Bipolar Disorder.

Young Adult Community Involvement

As members of The Department of Mental Health (DMH) Young Adult Councils, we advocate for transition age services, advise DMH and providers, and foster hope.

DMH Young Adult Councils help the Transitions RTC by:

- Providing input on our tip sheets
- Getting involved in our research studies
- Disseminating information to youth and young adults across Massachusetts

- MHE&YOU Community at UMass
- Youth Development Committee (YDC): Subcommittee of State Mental Health Planning Council focused on the DMH TAY Initiative.
- Statewide Young Adult Council (SYAC): Advocates for youth and young adults receiving DMH services and the community.
- Central MA Young Adult Advisory Council (YAAC)
