Learning Objectives

By the end of this seminar the participant will:

• Learn how family physicians can distinguish themselves as effective advocates

• Understand how to disagree without being disagreeable as you advocate

• Know what our specialty organizations can do for us

• Consider opportunities for collaboration with community organizations and other stakeholders

• Create a wish list for future advocacy and legislative priorities
Advocacy 201

- Know the issues and who will speak on them. Go in with a plan on who in the group is going to speak/advocate for each specific policy to be efficient and avoid talking over each other. Consider assigning a leader to call on certain individuals.

- Develop an “elevator speech” 30 seconds to 1 minute to keep your audience attentive and practice with a timer.

- Personal sentiments/anecdotes are essential. Lawmakers share those stories with their constituents. Emotions and stories about patients are more powerful than statistics when communicating with legislators and residents have a unique lens that you can share with them. Anticipate questions from your representative/senator and prepare researched answers.
Advocacy 201

• Do your research, know what issues your representative/senator is active on, and where they stand on the issues. How have they voted in the past? Share some gratitude if the representative has previously acted on policy issues or supports your legislative priorities.

• Connect to your audience by finding shared values. You may disagree with a lawmaker’s previous voting history, but you can spin a policy issue in a unique perspective.

• Ask for feedback. At the end of a meeting, it is okay to ask whether this issue is something that the legislator/staffer can see themselves working on. Staffers will generally be honest with you. Also, always ask if they have any unanswered questions.
Advocacy 201

• Follow up after the meeting. Ask the staff member you meet with for their contact information and send a thank you email after your meeting. Always share your gratitude and remember it takes time to get meaningful results in government.

• Stay involved. After your legislative meeting, consider sharing your policy passions via social media or by publishing an op-ed.

Lawmakers are Pulled In Many Directions

• Members of Congress work approximately 70 hours per 7-day week when they’re in DC.

• When members of Congress are in their districts during recess, they are working an average of 50 hours a week.

• During a typical day in DC a member of Congress will attend 15 events including constituent meetings, speaking engagements, votes, committee hearings and fundraisers.
How Association Advocacy Works

• In order to break through all the noise, medical societies work with their membership to deliver a pro-family medicine message to each lawmaker.

• When we each play our part, lawmakers hear- and are influenced by - a consistent and unified voice from family medicine wherever they go.
AAFP’s staff:

• Monitors legislative and regulatory activity to identify opportunities to advance our policy agenda.

• Persuades lawmakers and their staff when possible, to modify policies or rules to protect our profession and patients.

• Educates lawmakers on our issues so that they are better prepared to make good decisions.
Your Role in Advocacy

• YOU are the experts and YOU are who members of Congress want to hear from.

• You don’t need to know the specifics about a policy but you should share:
  • How a policy is or isn’t working locally
  • How a policy is impacting you, your practice or your patients
  • How that policy can be improved to make things better locally
