

Like three residencies in one...you choose the health center that best fits YOUR interests!

Founded in 1974, the University of Massachusetts Worcester Family Medicine Residency continues at the forefront of Family Medicine training regionally and nationally.

With more than 400 graduates to date, UMass offers one of the largest, most experienced Family Medicine residencies in the country and the largest in the Northeast. Counted among our alumni are community and national leaders, department chairs, respected researchers and educators, and clinicians practicing the full range of Family Medicine.

The University of Massachusetts Medical School, perennially ranked in the Top Ten Percent in primary care education nationally, owes its standing in large part to the Department of Family Medicine and Community Health. Family physicians are influential leaders throughout the institution and community.

Our residency provides:

- nationally recognized provider wellness curriculum
- broad scope of training opportunities including:
 - maternity care - hospital medicine - procedural training
- diverse patient communities
- integrated behavioral health

Family Medicine faculty are:

- recognized nationally, locally and by the University for their leadership, commitment to public service, community health and patient care
- devoted to caring for the underserved
- pioneers in community-based medical education
- nationally recognized leaders in faculty development
- committed to training leaders in family medicine

This area has so much to offer! The four-time winner of the All American City Award and the second largest city in New England (population 182,000), Worcester is a great place to live and work. Those who live here know about Worcester's gravitational pull. People who come tend to stay. People who leave seem to always be drawn back.

Drive to Boston in 45 minutes, or visit New York City in under four hours. Ski in the mountains or sun at the beach in less than an hour.
