

The Office for Postdoctoral Scholars
The Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences
The Graduate Student Body Committee

Present a Professional Development Seminar

An academic position at a small college: "Career death" or just a different kind of career?

Leonard A. Doerfler, Ph.D.
Professor of Psychology,
Assumption College &
Associate Professor of Psychiatry at UMMS

Leonard A. Doerfler, Ph.D. is Professor of Psychology at Assumption College and Adjunct Associate Professor of Psychiatry at the University of Massachusetts Medical School.

During his career, Dr. Doerfler has held academic positions in a large university that emphasizes research and doctoral education (Auburn University), a medical school that emphasizes patient care and research (UMMS), and a liberal arts college that emphasizes teaching, service, and research (Assumption College).

Come learn about career opportunities and activities in a college or university that emphasizes teaching, and how to pursue one's research program at a teaching college.

Monday, March 5, 2012

2:30-3:30 pm

Amphitheater 1 (S2-102)

Refreshments to be served