Want to be our next Young Adult Advisory Board Member?

Help shape the future of young adult mental health research and services

The Transitions to Adulthood Center for Research at UMass Chan Medical School has research and knowledge-sharing projects that aim to support young adults like you with mental health conditions. Some projects include efforts to improve learning, working, and other community participation outcomes among young adults from disadvantaged, vulnerable, or marginalized backgrounds. Young Adult Advisory Board members offer ideas, feedback, and other contributions to various aspects of the Center’s projects based on their lived experience expertise.

How to Join

■ Must be 18–30 years old and self-identify as having a mental health condition. Individuals from diverse backgrounds are particularly encouraged to participate.

■ Must be willing to make a 1-year commitment, up to 5 hours per month. This includes up to a 2-hour video conference meeting held between 9–5 pm EST, Monday–Friday and may also include consultation via written materials and/or smaller group video conference calls.

■ Use the link or scan the QR code below to submit an application and upload a cover letter. Applications will begin being reviewed on January 8, 2023. Please email mei.pearlstein@umassmed.edu with any questions.
